

Your business card, on steroids.

What if you could send your personal brand beyond any single website? What if you could put yourself in front of thousands of new potential customers throughout hundreds of websites? Well, that's exactly the technology we've been building at BusinessCard2™.

See, we believe that social networks are great and all, but the chances of doing a year's worth of business, or nailing your next big contract, is slim. You can't count on your existing social network to deliver business results for you. You need to be proactive and find ways to cut through the digital noise to reach new customers. So, we've created an exciting new method called *IdentityBroadcasting*SM that can help launch your personal brand further, faster.
